

With the release of the latest PGH Colorado rankings update for the 2021 class on Wednesday, there was plenty of player movement up and down the list. Rather than being a product of players lowering their stock, most of the movement resulted from players competing their way up the list as well as the addition of 10 new players to the rankings.

Here are five juniors who have raised their stock as much or more than anyone else over the course of their final regular seasons in high school.

Trinity Grambusch, 5-11, PG, Smoky Hill

Grambusch is another player with the tools to be an excellent recruit if she continues to improve, and especially if she gets stronger as she gets older. Long and lean at the moment, Grambusch is a unique player in that she plays point guard for Smoky Hill despite being very nearly six feet tall. With a 4-19 regular season record, the Buffaloes won't be participating in this winter's state tournament but Grambusch still flashed her potential, averaging 14 points, 4.3 rebounds, 1.4 assists and 2.5 steals while shooting 33 percent (18 for 55) in 14 games played, according to MaxPreps.com.

Grambusch moved up from No. 60 to No. 37.
